ANNEX II

Electronic communications and information society legislation

July 2012

This annex lists the relevant legislation on electronic communications and information society topics, with the title of the law or ordinance in the original language and in English translation and a reference to the official gazette number of the original version and later amendments.

The scope of the covered primary legislation includes:

- law on electronic communications (or law on telecommunications) and special laws on certain topics of electronic communications regulation, such as law on universal service, law on digital switchover, law on wireless communications, law on data retention, law on rights of way etc.;
- laws on broadcasting or electronic media, law on the public service broadcaster;
- law on competition;
- laws on electronic signature, e-commerce and electronic documents;
- law on data protection;
- the criminal code;
- other laws relevant for the sector (for example Law on the information society services, laws containing special provisions for internet service providers etc.) or other laws that are referred to in other tables of this study.

With regard to secondary legislation, only the most important items of secondary legislation are covered.

	According to Article 47 of the Law on Electronic Communications, the Ministry is authorised to prescribe the Rulebook on the Requirements Relevant to Ensuring Electromagnetic Compatibility of Electronic Communications Networks, Associated Facilities, Electronic Communications Equipment and Terminal Equipment. According to the legal procedure, the Ministry received the Draft of the Rulebook from the Agency (RATEL) and conducted public consultations. Upon completion of the public consultation process, the Draft was sent to the Ministry of Economy and Regional Development. The Ministry of Economy informed us that there is no need for a separate rulebook on electromagnetic compatibility for radio and telecommunication terminal equipment, since the Ministry of Economy adopted the Rulebook on electromagnetic compatibility in 2009, which is harmonized with the EU Directive on Electromagnetic Compatibility (this Rulebook is available in English). Having in mind this opinion, the Ministry of Culture, Media and Information Society has withdrawn the Draft from procedure.
